The French Senate Passes the Bill Expelling the Princes.

In the debate on the Expulsion bill in the French Senate on the 22d, Premier de Freycinet said that his Government would not tolerate another Government in France, and would take the full responsibility for the expulsion of the Princes. He refuted the charge that the Government was yielding to their reconcilables. He declared that order wa being maintained throughout France, even at Decareville, where a recurrence of the recent disorders had been prevented. That was not the case in Belgium or in Great Britain. In conclusion, he deprecated the confiscation of the property of the Princes, insisted that the common law would not apply to the Princes, and urged the necessity of Republican union as of supreme interest to the Republic.

Finally a secret ballot was taken and the bill as it left the Chamber of Deputies was adopted by a vote of 141 to 107. The announcement of the result was received with great applause by the members of the Left.
The bill as now adopted comprises four articles, as follows:
ARTICLE 1.—The territory of the French

Republic is, and remains, interdicted to the heads of families which have reigned over France and to their direct heirs in the order of primogeniture.

ART. 2.—The Government is authorized to expel by special decree the other members of these families.

ART. 3.—Whover shall, in violation of this ART. 3.—Whover shall, in violation of this interdiction, be found in France, in Algeria or in the colonies, shall be punished by imprisonment of from two to five years. At the expiration of his punishment he shall be re-expiration of his punishment he shall be re-conducted to the frontier.

ART. 4.—The members of princely familes authorized to remain temporarily upon the territory of the Republic shall be excluded from all public functions.

The Corpse Sat Up and Talked. A singular story comes from Clinton, Ky. It appears that George O. Daniels, of that place, has been ill for several months and last Wedneslay to all appear-ances died. The body was put in a coffin, where it remained for twenty hours, awaiting the arrival of relatives to attend the funeral. At midnight Thursday the watchers who surrounded the coffin were watchers who surrounded the comin were startled by a deep groan emanating from it, and all but one, a German by the name of Wabbeking, rushed from the room. Wabbeking remained, and, as the groans continued, he raised the coffin hid and saw that Daniels was alive. Seizing the body he placed it upright. A few spa smodic gasps, abudder and the corres spoke. The a shudder, and the corpse spoke. The relatives returned to find the man sitting in a chair and conversing with reasonable strength. Mr. Daniels claims to have been perfectly conscious of everything which perfectly conscious of everything which passed around him, but he says he was unable to move a muscle. He heard the sobs of his relatives when he was pronounced dead by the doctors, and noticed the preparations for the funeral. He is about eighty years of age.

She met him on the street, and after charging him with having slandered her, asked him to sign a retraction, which he refused to do. She persisted in her request, telling him at the same time that if he did not sign he would regret it. He a min refused, wherewould regret it. He again refused, where-upon she drew a revolver and fired five shots, each bullet taking effect. Roberts died in a few. minutes. Mrs. Lyles, after snapping the revolver several times upon empty cartridges, walked quietly away and surrendered herself to the Sheriff. Roberts leaves a widow and two children. He was formerly Sheriff of this county and stood high in public estimation. Mrs. Lyles has a husband and two children.

Big Strikes Ended.

All the collar girls on strike at Troy, N. Y., have been ordered by District Assembly 68, Knights of Labor, to return to work at manufacturer's prices.
The manufacturers say that $125,000 is about the usual weekly pay in all the con-cerns. Consequently this month of idleness has cost the girls $225,000.

The molders' strike, which has been in existence at Troy five months and involved 800 molders and as many stove mounters and other employes, is at last declared off. Both the manufacturers and the men make some concessions. The latter agree to return to work at Board prices pending arbitration, and an adjustment of prices based on the average paid elsewhere. istence at Troy five months and involved 800

GLADSTONE'S CAMPAIGN.

Opening Address of His Canvass Made in Edinburgh. Mr. Gladstone spoke in Music Hall, Edinburgh, on the night of the 18th, making the opening ad lress of his canvass. Tickets of admission had been issued, and the hall, which is capable of holding 2,000 persons, was filled to its utmost capacity. The audience cheered for Mr. Gladstone and Lord

Roseberry and groaned for Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Hartington and other Unionists. When he began his speech, Mr. Gladstone's voice seemed less powerful than formerly. He said that Inkerman was a soldiers' battle. It was not won by generals' tactics or ability, but by soldiers' valor. Equally were the present dissolution of Parliament and general elections the people's battle. Referring to the seceding Liberals, Mr. Gladstone said the quistion was whether the country would resolve, with a strong sense of justice and sympathy for Ireland, to compensate for these defections.

"I am strongly convinced," said he, "that the people have resolved to carry the day, notwas fought against us by the officers of our own army. It is desirable to speedily close this great controversy for every interest in this country. The position of all parties will be deplorable. Public business will be interrupted and public confidence shaken. Social order in Ireland will not be restored unless the people speak clearly, manfully, and decisively, such as the question merits. A MANDARIN'S PALACE The Chinese Minister to Erect a Pal-atial Building in Washington. Considerable interest is developing in diplomatic circles at Washington over the announcement that has been made to a select number that the new Chinese Minister is intending to construct a mansion for the legation and residence of the representatives of the Celestial Empire in the national capital. There are about twenty-six persons connected with the legation here, besides servants. The building will be erected in the fashionable northwest portion of the city, and a whole block will be purchased at an expense of not less than $250-000. The building will be after the exact fashion of a mandarin's palace, and will cost fashion of a mandarin's palace, and will cost a quarter of a million or more. The whole block will be surrounded by a wall, and carpenters and masous will be imported from China to do the work. The building will be only one-story high, but that story will be higher than the ordinary Americau story. The expenses and board of all the people connected with the Chinese legation at Washington are paid by that government, and the Minister is paid $50,000 a year besides, making his entire compensation as much as $60,000 annually. The construction of this palatial Legation building settles the fact that the Chinese Government intends to make Washington the headquarters for all the diplomatic business for this part of the world. It is albusiness for this part of the world. It is al-ready the headquarters for Spain and Peru, as well as the United States.

FACTS FOR THE CURIOUS.

According to a New York medical journal one-half of the adult men in America, living in our cities, are baldheaded.

Several specimens of English flora are said to have been exterminated by modern tourists, plant dealers, and botanists, the lady's slipper, orchid and the holly fern having disappeared among others.

Speaking of the musical perch of the Ohio River, W. H. W. says: "The humming or singing is produced by two cor rugated bones in the mouth or throat, which they rub together, and the sound is on the principal of the violin or musical glasses. Among the wonderful products of art in the French Crystal Palace was shown a lock which admitted of 3,647,385 combinations. Heuret passed 120 nights in locking it. Fichet was four months in unlocking it; afterward they could neither shut nor open it. The heavy-armed Roman foot soldiers had helmets, breastplates, greaves, shields, spears and two-edged swords. Each legion had also a band of cavalry with lighter arms; a'so had its own artillery, not cannon, but battering rams and machines for discharging great stones.

After the Norman conquest of England the King and the upper classes spoke French, and the English schoolchildren were taught in French. As it was fashionable to speak French rather than English, those who wanted to appear "genteel" always tried to do so. In those days it wasn't "English, you

Even this man must have descended from a thane, so we do not know the value of a plain man. Any one who killed a man of mack had to pay forfeits in accordance with the above-mentioned

A pet black squirrel owned in Savannah, Ga., was left at home while its mistress went away for a visit. As soon as the little fellow missed her he hunted all over the house, and, not finding her, showed unmistakable grief. He refused to eat day after day, until it was so evident that he was starving himself to death that his mistress was sent for. When she came the squirrel was frantic with joy, and then it tried to eat, but it had fasted too long; it could not swallow, and the next day died, lying on the knees of its mistress.

Mourning in Corea.

In walking through the streets of Seul one often meets with figures clothed from head to foot in a grayish yellow sackcloth, with bright yellow hats, or rather broad-brimmed straw baskets, on their heads; men, moreover, who further disguise their identity by holding a strip of sackcloth stretched on pieces of stick in front of their faces. These are mourners. In the year 1882 a Japanese traveler who landed on the northeast coast found the officials and all the inhabitants in this lugubrious masquerade. They were in mourning for the Queen, who was supposed to have been murdered, but who, after the people had worn sackcloth half a year for her sake, emerged safe and sound from the hiding place where she had taken refuge from the pursuit of her wicked father-in-law, Tai-on-Kun. For a Queen it is customary to mourn twelve months, for parents and near kinsfolk three years. What a deep influence this prescriptive usage has upon the life of people is illustrated by the following story of an aged bachelor who was asked why he had never taken a wife. ents, as well as myself," he said, "were desirous that I should marry, and a suitable young lady being found our betrothal took place. Then my future father-inlaw died, and we had, of course, to wait three years. I had hardly put off my mourning than I had to bewail the loss of my own poor father; necessarily here was another term of three years' waiting. When these were up the mother of my future wife took sick and expired, and thus we were obliged to delay our marriage another three years. Lastly, I had the misfortune to lose my own dear mother, which naturally caused a further adjournment. So that, as four times three makes twelve, that number of years had passed over our heads and made us both the older. At this time my betrothed fell ill, and as she was at death's door I went to pay her a last visit. My future brotherin-law met me at the door and said: 'Although you are not formally married, yet perhaps I may for this once look upon you as man and wife; come in and see her. I had hardly entered and been for a moment face to face with my poor wife than she breathed her last. When I saw this all thoughts of marriage fled from me, and I have remained a bachelor ever since."-London Times.

Where Children Abound. Speaking of Madison Square, the New New York World says: We challenge the world to show such a nosegay of humanity. Roses, lilies, peaches, nectarines, with here and there a berry from the Antilles. Girls with long tawny hair-Undines a la mode. Sturdy boys in Knickerbockers, with their sailor hats. Spidery boys, who seem all legs, on roller skates Children with their round roller skates frank eyes looking straight into your own, with that calm, guileless look which the angels may but mortal man can never assume. Babies in their nurses' arms looking straight up into the blue heavens; their wee wet mouths and pulpy cheeks, all lawn and lace and lightness, like thistle down, with a halo of purity about them suggesting thoughts of the breath of hay, the coo of doves, the chirp of chicklets, spring meadows, running brooks, and all that is fresh in nature. Children, children, children everywhere, with their round, frank eyes, round mouths, round faces and little round noses. One grave and thoughtful as a little judge, dark haired, ox-eyed, serene: another like a turquoise butter-Here an infant on it's nurse's lap breating breath as sweet as any fawn's; next to it a grimy trampreeking of rum and tobacco; yet both are God's creatures.

Bad Effects of Bicycling. A St. Louis doctor says in an interview: Bicycle riding, like reller skating, hrs produced a new class of disease. It is an affection of the spine and kidneys, resulting from the continual jar of the machine. I know of six or eight cases of it that cannot be classified by l'ieir symptoms with any heretofore known ailment. In every instance it can be traced to the wheel. It exists only, however, in men of feeble organization and non-elastic constitution. They have no business taking violent exercise of any kind, and I don't know of any evil results following where the subject is active and strong. In fact, we frequently recommend bycycle riding as exercise, and in most cases the resulf is good."

Dropping the Go-Devil. The following is from a letter written to the New York Post from the Bradford (Penn.) oil wells: "Does any one want to drop it?" The expert said there would be plenty of time to get away. The correspondent, desirous of seeing how it was all done, climbed down from his perch on the fence and started for the well. "Don't be excited, said the expert. "You'll have time enough to get back here be-The platform about the fore it strikes." well was oily and slippery, so that the retreat would have to be entered upon with caution in order to avoid slipping down. The man at the well handed the correspondent the "go-devil." "Lower it well down in the iron casing," he said, "before you drop it, so there will be no mistake about it. There will be plenty of time to get away." The correspondent clutched the casting with his fingers between the four wings, and did as he was told to. Then he looked round to get the bearings for his feet. He cast his eyes up toward the highway as if to take a last look at the General, the Senators, the Secretary and the Assemblyman, only to be shouted to by them in chorus, "Why don't you let "All ready," said the man at the well. "Don't stumble over that timber when you start." Drop went the go-devil, and away went the correspondent. He leaped over the timber, skipped the gutter near the well, and made for the highway with the go-devil ringing in his ears as it sped down through the iron casing on its errand of destruction. The man who remained last at the hole walked deliberately off in another direction. The correspondent entertainment, the carpet is removed had time to recover his sight-seeing from the floor of the ring, and the latter position when the sharp crack of the gun caps 1,400 feet down in the earth was heard. away in the dense forests, engaged in a primitive way in the production of charcoal, Pedro Casanova and myself at once set out on horseback and arrived at the cabin of the Cuban just as the sun was going down, and to our delight found the object of our search. The little beauties were located in the section of a hollow log about six inches in diameter, and two feet long, suspended by a rope on the side wall of the cabin in a horizontal position. A little round hole, scarcely a quarter of an inch in diameter, in the centre of one end of the log, formed the only place of exit or entrance; the other end was closed with what seemed to be a conglomeration of pollen, wax, resin and some other moist and sticky mate-

we could discover was the little white fuzzy head of one of these insects peer-manner. The last of these foragers were just returning, and it was amusing to see how swiftly, yet surely, they would always dart from the air directly into the little entrance hole without ever once missing or having to crawl in, like our ordinary bees. In all their movements they are as swift as lightning, and we had great difficulty in catching one, and more in keeping him after being caught. The other end of this log hive was filled with a plug, which being with-drawn, the lady of the house took a sharp-pointed stick, and, reaching into the centre of the hive, perforated several of the largest bags; then, holding a glass tumbler under and slightly clevat-ing the other end of the hive, the honey ran in a stream, and soon nearly filled the tumbler with a very delicious but rather thin honey. This honey is supposed by the natives to possess medicinal virtues, and is sold at a high price, some-thing like the "bumblebec honey" in former is the real honey produced by stingless bees, while the latter, so far

We will here say a word in regard to a cough in the f.rming stage, where there is no constitutional or noticeable disease. A cough may or may not foreshadow serious evil: take it in its mi.dest form, to say the least, it is a nu'sance, and should be abated.

A cough is unlike any other symptom of disease. It stands a conspirator, with threatening voice, menacing the health and existence of a vital organ. Its first approac, is in whispers unintelligible, and at first too often unheeded, but in time it never fails to make itself understood—never fails to claim the attention of those on whom it calls.

The Subscription Book Business. "There is a great deal of money made in books," said a printer, "and a good deal lost. I could name for you a half dozen persons in Chicago who have made from $50,000 to $200,000 in a few years publishing or handling books for the subscription trade. If a book 'catches on,' and the agents who first try it are able to make good earnings, the thing goes like wildfire. Agents by the hundred then take hold of it, and the sales in a few months reach an enormous aggregate. Books which cost but forty or tifty cents to manufacture in quantities are sold at $3.50 to $4 to subscribers, about one-half of this going to the agent. "The subscription book business has one great advantage over the trade business. In the latter the first edition must be published as a venture. Frequently the best of judgments on the salability of a book will be at fault, and in case of no sale there is an enormous loss. The subscription publisher prints no more books than are needed, and need never go further than the manufacture of a few prospectuses if the work should fall flat on his hands. Authors of regu-

"Blood Will Tell." "Blood Will Tell."
Yes, the old adage is right, but if the liver is disordered and the blood becomes thereby corrupted, the bad "blood will tell" in diseases of the skin and throat, in tumors and ulcers, and in tubercles in the lungs (first stages of consumption), even although the subject be descended in a straight line from Richard Cour de Lion, or the noblest Roman of them all. For setting the liver in order no other medicine in the world equals Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Try it, and your "blood will tell" the story of its wonderful efficacy.
